

Zorro: The Curse of Capistrano
David Richmond and Drew Fracher

THE MAN

Senor Vega! We agreed to meet on a certain matter?

DIEGO

My apologies. I was detained. I am at your service. Your ill-manners in seeking a quarrel in the presence of a lady are deplorable, so I shall now punish you for them- en garde-

(They salute and begin to duel . Diego dispatches his opponent and sends him offstage slightly wounded. Toward the end of the duel Dona Elena's husband appears on the balcony)

HUSBAND

Elena!

(He drags her inside, then reappears.:)

HUSBAND

Sir! You've made of me a cuckold!

DIEGO

Oh, come, now! I've done no more with enterprise than you've accomplished with neglect-

HUSBAND

You won't live to brag of it- (he rushes down to engage Diego-)

DIEGO

My life, sir, is in pawn to this-(he draws) and I do not brag. Others do that for me, all unprompted- (They fight. Diego drives the man back to his house and off..) ..poor man..he crossed swords with Diego Vega, and there's no one he can tell, without confessing why...